by many a radical departure from tra-ditional educational methods, is re-viewed by Miss Anne E. George in the annual report of the commissioner of education, just issued. The method is summed up as "Freedom for development of the child under best conditions, disturbing as little as possible but beloing y every means this development."

Dr. Montessori's particular contribution to the world, according to Miss George, has been that of applying the methods of experimental science to the study of man. The Montessorl "didactic material," it is explained, tends to replace the teacher at the earliest stage of education and to make it possible for the child to accomplish his first work inwin any audition.

Sesses in like degree those qualities which make her a popular principal.

The performance begins with "A Wise Dope," wherein Kelly initiates the auditors into the mysteries of his philosophy, and the second act is commenced with a ludicrous "passing review," in which is introduced impersonations of Caruso, to Nora Bayes, Julian Eltinge, Fritzi Scheff, and Charlie Chaplin, which are all good.

The performance begins with "A Wise cation and to make it possible to child to accomplish his first work indepently of a mature mind. "Out of such experiments and the environment that Dr. Montessori establishes," declares Miss George, "she confidently expects others to bring fresh facts, and to build up the content of scientific pedagogy through a method of research, limited by no personality, allied solely to human beings who develop in liberty." human beings who develop in liberty."
As an instance of the crystallization of sentiment and effort in connection with the Montessorri movement, Miss George describes the organization in May, 1913. at Washington, of the Montessori Educational Association, formed "to promote and develop in America the educational movement based on the principles and theories of Dr. Montessori, and to as-

Heretofore, the commission has opposed all suggestions that it be enlarged, but work has been piling up on it to such an extent recently, that the members now are said to look favorably on the plan. There now are seven members of the commission and it is asserted this number is unable to handle the increased business.
